Pair Sentenced To One Year

WOMAN ASKS FOR JAIL TERM

Clarence Sedore and Mrs. Winifred Handy of Aurora pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of car at Newmarket police court on Tuesday, and were each sentenced to one year in the reformatory.

"On Saturday, April 25, about midnight, I parked my car at the approach to the bridge in Sutton and went in for a newspaper," testified Duncan Tillett of Roche's Point. "The two accused were just coming out of the store. As I started to come out I saw Sedore push Mrs. Handy in the car and Sedore got in the driver's seat. I had seen the two accused at the hotel earlier on and Sedore carried Mrs. Handy out. Later I identified my car in a lane on the baseline. It was upset and badly damaged."

"Did you see me driving the car?" asked Mrs. Handy.

"No," replied the witness.

"I think you have made a mistake there because I was driving it."

"At one o'clock on April 26 when I arrived home from a call a message was left at my home that Clarence Sedore had taken Tillett's car," stated Constable William Hill. "I proceeded west on the baseline from Sutton and about three miles out noticed skid marks. I went to the corner of the 5th where I met Constable Morton. Then I turned east again and saw the accused thumping a ride about forty feet west of the skid marks. They said they wanted a ride to Keswick. Their feet and legs were covered with mud. Sedore said he couldn't find Mrs. Handy in Sutton so started to walk home alone. He heard the brakes of the car and ran down to meet her, and there was water in the fields. Mrs. Handy admitted right straight that she had stolen the car."

"On the 25th of April I went to Sutton with this lady," said Clarence Sedore. "We were drinking up there and took Tillett's car. I didn't shove Mrs. Handy in the car, she got in on her own power. She said she wanted to get home to her children. If I hadn't been drinking I would never have done it."

"As far as Mrs. Handy is concerned, she has no record," informed Crown Attorney Mathews. "She is a married woman, her husband is overseas, and she has four children. There are two people looking after them and I believe she is working part time."

A record against Sedore was read, showing that he had spent three months in the Guelph reformatory and six months in Burwash on charges of theft.

"Under my jurisdiction one year is the minimum penalty for an offence of this kind," stated Magistrate W. E. McIlveen.

"I'll pay the damages," said Mrs. Handy.

"There is no alternative," replied His Worship.

"Although Mrs. Handy pleaded guilty I don't think she is as guilty as Sedore," stated Crown Attorney Mathews. "As far as she is concerned I would agree to suspended sentence, but certainly not in the case of Sedore. Mrs. Handy should be at home with her children."

"My children are alright," spoke up Mrs. Handy. "They're with my mother."

"You would sooner go to jail would you?" asked His Worship.

"Yes," replied accused.

Ernest Green of Hamilton, charged by Chief Constable James Sloss with vagrancy and assault, was remanded in custody one week for sentence.

Rev. Greer To Go West As Missionary

TENDERS RESIGNA- TION TO CHURCH BOARD

Rev. Arthur Greer, for the past three years the popular pastor of the Newmarket Congregational-Christian Church, tendered his resignation to the congregation on Sunday so that he might enter missionary work.

Rev. Greer told the Express-Herald this morning that he had trained for the mission field, but circumstances had never permitted him to accept a call, while the foreign field was closed to him on account of health. Now he has the opportunity to serve in the Northwest with the United Church.

The Rev. Greer and family will motor to the West during his holiday month of August. He does not know as yet where he will be located, but states "just where he will be needed most."

QUEEN'S YORKS PUT ON DEMONSTRATION

WAR CHARITIES BENEFIT BY DONATION OF $200

Thanks to the hearty co-operation of citizens of Newmarket, collection of waste paper, rags, rubber and other waste materials during April reached a total of over 22 tons, and proceeds of sales amounted to $293 for the month.

Donations to War Charities totalling $200 were authorized this week and include taking over from the Veterans their next cigarette mailing list for troops overseas.

Scrap rubber makes tires for the army.

Scrap paper makes shell cases.

Fats make explosives.

Bones make aeroplane glue.

Rags make army blankets.

A monster collection is planned for the last week in May when the entire town will be covered. In the meantime any urgent calls may be telephoned to 431 and an effort will be made to collect, but if possible please hold till regular collection date.

The work of collecting salvage has grown to such proportions that more help is badly needed to supervise loading of trucks and help in warehouses on collection days. Volunteers who could spare a Saturday afternoon to help the boys

It Didn't Happen Here!

CIVILIAN DEFENSE COMMITTEE HARD AT WORK

That's the way we all would like to change the well-worn book title. But a thing like that does not just happen. It takes a lot of work to do something about it. Everyone of us.

You may or may not know that we have a Newmarket Civilian Defence Committee. For the past two months, under the able chairmanship of H. E. Lambert, this group of citizens have been working hard collecting information, digging up facts, planning and dividing up our town into districts and generally doing all the spadework that does not show, but must be there for any successful enterprise.

Much information has been col-

AURORA JEWELLER IS STRICKEN SUDDENLY

The death occurred suddenly at York County hospital on Saturday, April 25, of Walter Franklin Evans, Aurora Jeweller.

He was stricken on Friday afternoon and rushed to hospital. Mr. Evans was in his 57th year. He was born in East Gwillimbury township, his parents being the late Thomas and Sarah Evans. Early in life he suffered from paralysis, which forced him to walk for the rest of his life on crutches, but despite this handicap he was always cheerful.

As a young man he learned the watchmaking business with the late "Staff" McKeown at Mount Albert. He was a skilled craftsman and after being in business in western Canada came to Aurora 14 years ago. He opened a business on Wellington St., later moving to Yonge St. Only a few weeks ago he moved his premises to the Caruso block. In politics he was a Liberal.

He is survived by two brothers, Jack and Hugh of Mount Albert, and two sisters, Mrs. William (Bessie) Rosamond of Newmarket and Mrs. Norman (Cora) Rogers of Toronto. The funeral service was held on Monday at P. M. Thompson's funeral parlor with Rev. Roy Hicks in charge. Pallbearers were all close friends: Leland Bryan, Ross Macchell, Anthony Caruso, Bert Taylor, all of Aurora, and Jack Booth and Al Skinner of Newmarket. Interment was made in Newmarket cemetery.

PEP KELLY MAY RETURN TO O.H.A. NEXT WINTER

Regis (Pep) Kelly, formerly of Toronto Maple Leafs of the N.H.L., is now a resident of St. Catharines and a candidate for senior O.H.A. competition next season with St. Kitt's Saints. Kelly first attained hockey prominence with Newmarket and St. Michael's College Majors when they won the Memorial Cup. The North Bay native was immediately signed with the Leafs where he right-winged on various lines until sold to Chicago Blackhawks, then to New York Americans, and a year ago to Springfield Indians of the minor pros. Midway in last season he was traded to Tiny Thompson's Buffalo Bisons, where he finished out the term. Kelly is now desirous of becoming established permanently and will apply for his amateur reinstatement to the C.A.H.A., if waivers can be secured from other clubs in President Podoloff's league. He believes that the handwriting is on the wall for entry of Canadian hockey players into the United States for the duration and has become associated with one of St. Catharines largest industries in war munition work.

BLAZE AT AURORA IS PUT OUT TWICE

Aurora firemen were called out twice within a few hours Tuesday night to extinguish a fire on the premises of Fred Morris, who operates a butcher shop on Wellington street.

About 7:30 fire broke out in a kitchen back of the butcher shop. Firemen soon extinguished the blaze, and prevented damage to the second storey of the building. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

A second alarm was turned in about 2:50 Wednesday morning, when Night Constable F. Dunham discovered the fire had broken out again. Firemen spent more than an hour bringing the blaze under control.

Mr. Morris was out of town when the fires occurred. The only person in the building was a housekeeper. Damage is thought to be about $350.

In this work occasionally would be very welcome.

SON OF FORMER NEWMARKET LADY REPORTED MISSING

That her son, Flight-Sergeant Roy Leonard McDonald of the Royal Air Force, was missing and believed to be a prisoner of war in the Far East, was the information received by Mrs. Margaret McDonald, 16 Snowden Avenue, from the Air Ministry. He worked for the Mail and Empire for several years, but in 1937 he went to England and enlisted in the Royal Air Force.

He was stationed at a number of R.A.F. stations in the Old Country until less than a year ago when he was transferred to the East. He did not state what part of the East he was in, but his family were given the impression it was Egypt.

In addition to his mother the family consists of four brothers, two overseas with the Toronto Scottish, Gordon and Douglas, Irwin in Halifax and Clare of Toronto, and one sister, Margaret, at home.

His mother was the former Margaret Irwin, of town, and he is a grandson of Mrs. Andrew Irwin, who is well known here.

REMEMBER MOTHER

May brings to us nature at its best—leaves on the trees, green grass, bursting buds and the kindly sun. What more appropriate season of the year could be chosen to set aside one particular Sunday to especially remember that person who has brought so much beauty and sunshine into everyday life and home—Mother.

This coming Sunday tribute will be paid to mother from church pulpits in every land. To some she may be just a memory, while to the more fortunate she will be enshrined in every word and thought on this day of days. You may forget what day an anniversary falls on or somebody's birthday, but you can't forget Mother's Day. Show that mother of yours on Sunday just what she means to you.

WE WONDER

After the plebiscite comes many editorials on what now! A host of people (in the newspaper world especially) are telling the Government what should be done. The following excerpt from "The Printed Word" made us stop and wonder because it is the sentiment you will hear every day on the street:

"Canada's war effort to date has been creditable, but the desire of Canadians is that it should be amazing. They are impatient with red tape, they are annoyed by petty restrictions, but they are enthusiastically willing to accept serious privations and to make real sacrifices if they are called upon to do so."

We recall the days when it "leaked out" that tires were going to be hard to procure and the rush of good Canadians to get a full set of new ones. Then came the sugar rush, the appeal for preferred gas rationing, the purchase of a dozen tins or more of salmon when it was announced that the British Isles would get the entire 1942 pack, the orders placed for men's clothing and so on all down the line.

Canadians may be enthusiastically willing to accept serious privations, but a lot of our actions and attitudes point the other way.

WANTED — "OLD MEN"

A few days ago an advertisement appeared in the Detroit News which read: "Wanted: A-1 toolmakers, experienced jig and fixture inspectors. Age limits 45 to 58 years."

This wasn't a joke but rather a candid admission on the part of a large industry, engaged in war contracts, that men of any age capable of working, could find work now.

It has taken a war for many industrialists to learn that man's usefulness is not over when he reaches 45 or 50 years of age. The peace-time discrimination against men past middle age is rapidly vanishing now that the enemy is at our gates. Many of the plants now crying for men of any age, who until recently wanted only young men, realize that their own plants are of little value unless more munitions of war can be produced, hence the cry for greater production.

The practice, in the past of dispensing with all labour that could not produce so much a day, based on the production of the fastest workmen, is cruel and unjust. If a man can work only three or four hours a day and is a competent workman, he should be given employment, especially during war-time. The war may yet solve many injustices and problems of a peace-time era. It is hoped that humane treatment may yet out-weigh profits in the future.

IN A FOOL'S PARADISE

Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers, comments the Ottawa Journal. So there are people going about whispering that all these Government exhortations to save gasoline and rubber and wool and sugar don't really mean anything, that there is no vital scarcity.

Such people, we suggest, are in for an awakening. Because there is not merely a scarcity of the things mentioned above, but in some cases a desperate scarcity; a scarcity which, in the case of rubber, is going to change the way of life for this whole continent for perhaps a decade.

Indeed, in so far as rubber is concerned, a victory for the United Nations toward the end of this year (something which nobody can see) or in 1943, would make little immediate difference. Japan is in Malaya, in possession of about 70 per cent. of all the world's rubber, and even if Japan were driven out of Malaya this year it is not likely she would leave behind her a land still producing rubber.

With respect to gasoline, our future supply depends entirely on the course of the battle of the Atlantic. That battle at this moment is not going well for us, as Mr. Churchill has just admitted, and if it should continue to go badly for us, or should get worse, gasoline rations will be cut still further.

Actually, war restrictions, the hour of "doing without," have just begun for us. Those who imagine otherwise are living in a fool's paradise.

TORONTO MAN DROWNS FISHING AT LAKE SIMCOE

Ernest Fry, 50, of 3 Bloom Ave., Toronto, was drowned in Glenwood Bay, Lake Simcoe, Keswick, Sunday, when his rowboat swamped in rough weather. Two companions were rescued.

Fry disappeared beneath the waves after his fourth attempt to right the boat. Ledford Kimball, 26, of 19 Ender Ave., Toronto, who had been assisting Fry, clung to the upturned craft until help arrived. The third member of the party, Wilfred Collins, 36, of 2 Savoy Ave., realizing the partially submerged craft would not support them all, struck for shore. He was a strong swimmer, but was being buffeted further out into the lake when rescued by James Clark in another rowboat with an outboard motor.

The plight of the trio had been seen on shore by Clark, who was the owner of the upturned craft. He set out to the rescue, picking up Collins first and then Kimball. The three men, all employees of Vail & Sheppard Cartage Company of Toronto, took the boat out early Sunday morning on a fishing trip. Ledford Kimball stated, "We had been out until nearly 3 o'clock in the afternoon when it began to blow and we headed for home," he recounted. "Shortly after we hit heavy weather, one of the oars broke and we had to use it as a paddle.

"The wind was striking from the side and as we tried to tack against it the water washed over the gunwales," he continued. "As soon as we got into the shallow waters of the bay, the waves became higher and more fierce and then the boat went out from under us."

Kimball said they were left struggling in the water for a few minutes until the boat reappeared upside down. "We all grabbed onto it and Fry climbed on top. Without warning, the waves spun it over in a complete circle. Again we grabbed the boat, and again Fry climbed on top. After the fourth time this happened, he didn't come up. I don't believe he could swim," he said.

The rescued man said he was eventually able to climb onto the stern of the boat which was held in one position by the anchor.

Ernest Fry is survived by his widow, Margaret, and a daughter, Jean, 14.

QUARRIES DEEP DOWN HOLD AIRCRAFT PLANTS

Underground stone quarries begun 2,000 years ago in Roman times now are giving sanctuary to British aircraft and war industry factories under constant threat of Nazi air raids.

The story of how two of these factories were set up underground is told in a recent issue of the British Journal, The Aeroplane, says Science Service.

In the first site surveys, guided by quarrymen who alone knew the planless cities of darkness, made their blueprints for a factory to be artificially heated, ventilated and lighted. One surveyor who strayed from his party was lost for two days. When the quarry was mapped, workmen and electricians swarmed through the cool, dark corridors and the ancient stone, once chipped by hand, now yielded to swift pneumatic drills.

Except for adding another million cubic yards of space and strengthening supports, engineers made their factory comply to the quarry. It was unnecessary to widen or straighten the streets and avenues. Walls and roofs were painted yellow to bind the fine dust which could damage precision machinery.

Elevators and escalators were built for factory workers and machinery, fluorescent lights installed, ventilators built and canteens and lavatories provided for.

Machines, Workers, Protected From Bombs

This site is now nearly complete. Six hostels, each quartering 1,000 men or women, are planned, and married quarters for another thousand. The latter will be little bungalows, built in pairs. There will be front and back gardens, even lawns.

The second underground factory is now complete. It is entirely air-conditioned, and the temperature kept from 60 to 65 degrees Fahrenheit. The main canteen, or restaurant, is above ground, but a small room for making tea is underground, and tea is served on trolleys to men and women at work.

Feature of this factory is the control room, built in an old seepage pit. It is linked to all parts of the factory by telephone, loud-speaker and microphone. Hourly production records are made, and by a glance at the charts the managing director can keep check on any section of the plant.

In both underground factories, irreplaceable machines and skilled workmen are safe from the most severe bombing.

NORTH YONGE RADIAL LINE SHOWS INCREASED REVENUE

North Yonge Railways, presenting its quarter-annual report, showed that passenger revenue totalled $26,404.79, a gain of $5,185.34, or 24.44 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

Operating expenses were approximately $30,000 greater than the first three months of 1941, due mainly to an increase in service mileage operated to Steele's Corners from the city limits which commenced May 10 of last year. Operating profit consequently took a decided jump during the first quarter. Figures showed a profit of $4,452, compared with an operating profit of $2,264 for the same period last year.

The Toronto Transportation Commission also reported to North York Council that an improved service will commence on the North Yonge Railway on May 9, when a 40-minute service to Richmond Hill and a 20-minute trip to Steele's Corners from Toronto on Saturdays only would be instituted. The schedule pointed out that such a service will be enjoyed between 9 a.m. until midnight, to Richmond Hill, and between 12.40 and 8 p.m., the 20-minute run to Steele's will be started.

A rider was attached to the proposed service, however, for unless the new schedule is not sufficiently patronized, the service will be discontinued.

Six persons, condemned to death, were pardoned by Britain's George VI. In return for submission to inoculation with smallpox. The experiment was successful.

AURORA YOUTH IS YOUNGEST AIR LEADER

Lloyd Chadburn, a blond squadron leader from Aurora, is making a name for himself as one of the youngest squadron commanders in the Royal Canadian Air Force overseas.

A 22-year-old veteran of more than 250 hours of operational flying, he was the first Commonwealth Air Training Plan graduate to be given command of a squadron and is the first airman to destroy a German E-boat with cannon fire. He also has damaged a destroyer and a Junker's 88.

"Chad," a bank ledger-keeper in Toronto before he joined up, has been with the squadron since its formation last November. He saw service before that with two Canadian fighter squadrons and an R.A.F. outfit.

Chadburn destroyed the E-boat while with the R.A.F. squadron, as a flight commander. The action took place about twenty miles off the Netherlands coast.

"There were three E-boats together," he related. "I picked off one and sank it with cannon fire. Then I damaged another and might have been able to do a job on the third but I ran out of ammunition." It was really an accident that the Aurora airman damaged the destroyer.

"I was supposed to shoot up an airdrome not far from Flushing but I missed it and landed smack over Flushing harbour," he said, pushing a map into the side of his heavy black flying boots.

"The destroyer was anchored in the harbour. Their radiolocation had picked us up and the guns around the harbour opened up on us and let go bundles of stuff."

"I sprayed the destroyer with cannon and machine-gun fire and knocked off a few of the sailors standing on the decks. A couple of their guns were knocked out, too."

Chadburn was on duck patrol off Yarmouth, on the east coast, when he damaged the Junkers. He smiles when he tells the story because the intelligence officers told him afterwards they had heard the Nazi pilot report by wireless to his base that he had been damaged but he had shot down a Spitfire. Chadburn's Spitfire wasn't even scratched.

"He had some close misses," Chadburn said, "but certainly nothing hit me. Anyway, I squirted him all over and saw something fly off so if he did get home he wasn't all in one piece."

COUNCIL MEET TO-NIGHT

Pot Pourri

By Golden Glow

I think we should start off with the weather—for once again the record has been broken. Yes indeed! For last month was the warmest April in one hundred years—in fact it "broke the record," or the records do not go back that far! Everybody keeps saying "oh we'll pay up for this." Well, yes, perhaps we may, but why not enjoy the glorious weather while we have it. We always used to consider the "Queen's birthday," the 24th of May, as the earliest we ever dare wear summer clothes, but here we have been in light summery frocks, and hot even then!

The other day Main Street was like an oven, and I don't mean maybe—it really was! The trees are out in full leaf and "the hum of the lawn mower is heard in the land." Asparagus is plenty in the menu, and cress, and these evergreen onions (is that what we call them, the perennial kind that appear soon as spring opens?) And the flowers—never have we had such an array of flowers this early in the season. Today (Monday, May 4) the lilacs are in bloom. Yesterday was Blossom Sunday in the Niagara district, and I hear everything was perfectly lovely, peach trees and cherry and plum, and the early apples as well, all in full bloom. And then the tulips in the Harry Oakes' Garden, right at the Falls. To hear all about it from someone who was there and who enjoyed it to the full, was next best to going myself!

Before I was up this morning I heard the golden oriole calling from my big maple tree. I think everyone in our neighborhood loves the oriole best of all! Then there is a colony of tree sparrows who are taking possession of the birdhouse in our neighbor's garden—the prettiest, daintiest little blue-birds ever you saw, and their song is so delightful and so sweet.

Then the flicker must have found another tree that is starting to decay somewhere near here, in spite of all that the town men have cut down Newmarket has lost so many of its old trees, for you can hear it drum, drum, early and late.

The Horticultural Society has planted quite a few more trees to replace those we have lost, but either children or careless adults have already destroyed several. Why do people delight in destruction? The tiny hands of children can do an enormous amount of damage—and so often it is "mob rule," sort of "what monkey sees monkey must do," and do they ever do it!

Last Saturday evening the pond looked beautiful, so placid and so still, and a young man was paddling round in an alice blue canoe. The shore was a ring of greenery, the willows all leaning out, and the shadows were perfect! The young man in the canoe was gliding silently along with scarcely a ripple—

I wonder if he had an idea what a picture he made? And I turned to my companion and said, "There! Now why can't we wake up to the fact that our pond, or Fairy Lake, if you want to call it that, could be made a decided asset to our town if someone enterprising enough were to start a "canoes for rent." It would be one of the most popular spots in town, and I bet it would pay!"

I have advocated that often enough before, but nobody seems to have thought it worth while. I still think it would be a paying investment for somebody, especially now when we will not be able to patronize Lake Simcoe so much.

What queer things we recall at times, and what on earth brought it into my head I really can't say, but here I was today, thinking about how we used to have fire drill up at high school. We always thought how jolly it would be if we could slide down the banister there in the girls' hall, but no, you must keep in line, and trot along with the rest. The gong has been known to sound without any of the teachers being responsible, and deep, searching inquiry failed to locate the culprit! Boys will be boys—and must confess the girls used to rather enjoy it!

The youngsters had a grand time Saturday night. You see, the York Rangers were putting on a demonstration. They were in Aurora first and came here later. It was a fine warm night, and I think every youngster in town was down town. When the boys in khaki finally came, excitement boiled over, and the "kids" were chased off one place to get in the road in another place! Water street had been blocked off from the top of the hill to Main St., and the manoeuvres took place along that stretch. The boys came up in army trucks from Aurora with the Q.Y.R. regimental trumpet band in attendance. They posted their guards and got into formation with the high-powered headlights of the army trucks and the "Jeep" shining along the road, making it as light as day. Then, "bang," the bomb went off up towards Main St., and along the road towards the bridge dashed the men in khaki, threw themselves down, and fired at the enemy from all directions. How the youngsters did yell. Then the soldiers did more manoeuvres in gas masks and the kids howled with delight! You would have thought it was all for their benefit. But if the children didn't understand, we grown-ups did, and we appreciated the work and training those chaps must have undergone to put on such a splendid show. Yes, and to do it in spite of all the handicap of folks getting in the way, and the children swarming all over the place! I was rather amused to hear one woman say "Do the soldiers have to run as fast as that? In quite a horrified tone. I wonder what she would think of the new commandos training our troops are all having to take now, when they have to do everything "on the double" from morning to night.

Yes, our own county regiment showed plenty of action with their Bren and Lewis guns. The smoke bombs and gas masks, and both active and reserve units showed how the commando troops work in manoeuvres. And we must not forget the regimental band; they were splendid. I don't doubt we all more or less got in their way, for nobody quite knew what to expect. I feel sure the was really brought home to Newmarket citizens by Saturday night's demonstration.

Then in the papers and over the air on Monday, May 4 (I am writing on Tuesday now, I didn't finish yesterday, I had so much to write about) came the word about the enthronement of the new Archbishop of Canterbury. It was a most imposing service, especially in these days of war, being very similar to the coronation ceremony of King George and Queen Elizabeth. We have so many things happening these days it is hard to know where to stop.

Quite likely as we read our local paper Thursday (this evening to you as you read) Toronto will be undergoing a complete "blackout." It will be Newmarket's turn presently, I have no doubt!

San Francisco and surrounding communities from San Francisco to Santa Rosa on the north, and Santa Cruz on the south, about 130 miles along the coast, had a surprise blackout Sunday night last forty-five minutes. But as it was in the night the people could stay in bed till the "all clear" sounded. An unidentified craft caused the "lights out" signal, but it turned out later to be friendly.

I must really take a few more minutes of your time for fear you did not hear over the air or see by the paper about the Beachcomber looking for sea-food, finding a packet addressed to a certain bank in Australia. Guess what! Nearly a million dollars worth of diamonds they were lost in an airplane crash from Java—when the plane was attacked by Japanese fighters. Several who were in the plane tried to locate the package of diamonds, but to no avail—then the beachcomber, more than a month after searching for food, unearthed the package in a mudbank and carried the gems in two large salt and pepper shakers to Broome, where he was going to join the army, having walked 160 miles to offer his services.

While on this subject, what about the Chinese patrol in Burma that ambushed and captured an elephant transport column? Last month three captured Japanese elephants lumbered into Chinese headquarters one day, and their Chinese captors were having more fun than a circus. They had been carrying four tons of dismounted artillery and ammunition, and as they rounded a corner of the Burma road (the road to Mandalay) they came in range of the Chinese machine gunners who killed six of the Japs and two elephants and captured the remainder of the column. But now Burma has fallen, and Mandalay a heap of ashes! Mandalay that was a dream city of the east! Made famous by the late Sir Rudyard Kipling!

Dear me, I can't stop yet! I must hand on the news that we shall have no more Toronto exhibitions for the duration. We can scarcely grasp that fact! But so it is. Military headquarters have decided to occupy the exhibition grounds, and everyone is getting quite excited over what will be done with the thousands of shrubs and plants and animals used each year to beautify the grounds and dwellings! Queen's Park is to be given a good share. How I wish Newmarket Horticultural Society might have some!

Then Monday's news brought word also from Reykjavik, the capital of Iceland, of an air battle over Iceland between a long-range German bomber and Norse airmen. It was reported by U.S. army officials who said the German plane, though damaged, escaped into a cloud bank. That brings to mind the fact that the six Newmarket boys of the Royal Regiment of Canada left Camp Borden for Iceland two years ago this month, and it was months before it was known, even vaguely guessed where they were.

Our boys were among the first to arrive in Iceland, but now it is revealed that two crews of Australian airmen are on active duty there with the forces in Iceland from Britain and U.S.A. We should be very glad to hear of the splendid defence of Iceland because anyone who saw the picture "49th Parallel" will have no illusions as to the fact that Iceland and Greenland constitute our eastern frontier.

Now I must really end up, or Mr. Editor will have to use his blue pencil. Here is a little one to end up on—the announcer says "On Lighter Vein." Michy has given out that no more wool may be used to make caps for French poodle-dogs! Oh wait, I have something else. It is about a dog too. Today is sugar-rationing in U.S.A., and folks all have to report to certain places for their sugar-rationing books, and the news-caster was telling of some sneaky excuses made to obtain more than the quota. One man wanted a book for a day-old baby, but of all the funny ones he told, I thought the woman who wanted one for her dog was the best! She said her dog drank three cups of tea every day and liked it sweet! She was told the dog would have to get used to taking its tea with lemon!

And I did want to tell you of something else too. Did you see in the paper about the proposed canal joining Lake St. Clair with Lake Erie? I think it would be splendid! It would take only a half-mile strip of farm land fifteen miles long. It could be built in 300 working days. Of course, it would mean five highway bridges, and two railway bridges, and then some dredging at each entrance but think of the saving of time and boats. The plans are now under consideration. Isn't it a splendid idea? The shipping of ore would be speeded up wonderfully. Do you know you could make one article these days ten times cheaper or out of either gold or silver than

THE THIRD RED CROSS DRIVE

MAY 11th to MAY 25th

TO THE CITIZENS OF NEWMARKET:—

This is the first appeal for funds for the Red Cross Society since 1940. You are all aware and familiar with the need and the splendid work being done by The Canadian Red Cross Society, wherever the need is presented. The demand on the Red Cross as new battle fronts are opened will be terrific. A great many of our Newmarket boys are now overseas, and will be benefiting by the supplies of the Red Cross.

The objective for Newmarket in 1940 was $5,000. NOW the objective has been set at $7,500, and the committee in charge feel sure that our citizens will make every effort to make certain that this objective is reached and in their usual style surpass it, which means that EACH and EVERYONE of us GIVE more than we did in the past. We ask your co-operation in this campaign. Receive the canvassers cordially. Have your donation ready and make it as generous as possible. We are all free from the horrors of war AS YET, so be generous in your contributions in order that our boys will not be neglected.

Do your part handsomely and put Newmarket well over the top again. ALL contributions are exempted from Income Tax.

TOWN OF AURORA IS SHORT OF WATER

Member of Fire Committee
Reveals Supply Not Enough to Last Hour Against Serious Fire

Fearing that the present town water supply will not meet the demand of industrial consumers as well as household users, Aurora Town Council decided Monday night to call in an expert to suggest a remedy for the situation.

So acute is the Aurora water problem that when the motor at the town pumping station ceased to function one day last week, a serious shortage was experienced the following day.

It was pointed out that several large industrial companies in the town are using a far greater water supply than in peace-time, and the increased number of railway trains travelling through Aurora are using four times as much water compared with three or four years ago. The tannery in the town is now using an average of 60,000 gallons of water per day, almost fifty per cent. more than before the outbreak of war, it was stated. Smaller companies now engaged in war work in the vicinity of Aurora are greatly exceeding their previous consumption.

Allan Langman, a member of Aurora Fire Committee, revealed that if there was a serious fire in the town, there would not be enough water to last more than an hour.

"The town water supply should be doubled and storage capacity should be greatly increased for immediate use," Mr. Langman explained. "A program should be instituted for the purpose of increasing the town capacity for the next 10 years," he added.

Mr. Langman said that the system will not take care of its increased consumers at the present time.

"One consumer could not get enough water for his immediate household use last week," he declared.

"There is absolutely no reason in the world why we shouldn't have an adequate water supply in the town," said Councillor Dr. D. A. C. Guntton. "If industries in the town are unable to secure a necessary supply, Aurora's prestige will be considerably reduced. We must act quickly and consult the advice of an expert," he said.

Deputy Reeve C. E. Sparks stated that "industrial companies in the town should not be asked to keep down their water consumption, for they require larger amounts while engaged in war work."

During winter months of this year council was forced to distribute notices to every household to refrain from unnecessary usage, such as leaving taps running to prevent freezing, in order to conserve the town supply. The same situation existed last summer when consumers were asked to co-operate in the discontinuance of lawn sprinkling, except for two hours in the evening.

MAY CALL UP RESERVISTS

Consideration is being given to the calling of men of draft age in the Reserve Army for compulsory military training, it was learned Tuesday.

Action has not yet been taken, but as a result of a study being made of Reserve Army conditions it is thought highly probable in official circles that district boards will shortly receive instructions on a new policy dealing with the calling up of Reserve Army men.

Men serving in the Reserve Army have never been technically exempt from compulsory training, but the practice has been not to call them except in a few cases where the men have not been fulfilling Reserve Army training requirements.

In some districts the manpower pool in the 21 to 30-year age group has been running low and opening the Reserve Army to the call-up would make new sources available.

OLD RHYMES, SAYINGS, FORE- TELL THE WEATHER

The accuracy of traditional weather signs as substitutes for scientific long-range weather forecasts, now banned by military censors, is analyzed in a new presentation, "Weather Signs in the Sky," at the Hayden Planetarium, New York City.

Professor William H. Barton, Jr., said in his lecture that many of the old rhymes and sayings handed down for generations offer reasonably helpful weather predictions without benefit of weather maps or barometers, provided the correct observations are used.

There is sound forecasting, he said, behind this old couplet: "Evening red, morning grey, sets the traveler on his way; Evening grey, morning red, keeps the traveler in his bed."

Red in the heavens is produced by the sun's rays striking the moisture in the air, he explained. When it is red in the evening the moisture probably will be dispersed during the night. Red in the morning indicates that rain or snow is coming, depending on the season.

Longfellow Noted For Weather Lore

Professor Barton cited another couplet based on good observation: "Rainbow at night, sailor's delight, Rainbow in the morning, sailors take warning."

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow made a reliable observation in his poem, "The Wreck of the Hesperus," Professor Barton continued. In the poem an old sailor says: "I fear a hurricane. Last night the moon had a golden ring, and to-night no moon we see."

The halo frequently seen around the moon is produced by the icy tops of approaching storm clouds. "These clouds, often invisible, are blown much faster than the rest of the storm, causing the ring on an otherwise clear night. The popular theory that the number of stars within the halo indicates the number of days before the storm strikes is false, Professor Barton said.

said. A halo indicates a storm

Among the signs often quoted which have no scientific foundation are those connecting the phases of the moon with weather, or the "wet moon, dry moon" beliefs. Only one star has any connection with the rain or snow that falls, he said, and that star is the sun. Sun spots on the stars have been found to be tied up with rainy and dry periods on various parts of the earth, but astronomical knowledge has not yet advanced to the point where it can make accurate prognostications based on these spots, he said.

FRIENDLY BRITAIN BACKED
U.S. FLEET AGAINST HUN
IN 1898

By D. S. R.

Some of us remember how back in 1895 Britain's dispute with Venezuela over the boundary line gave rise to an unpleasant incident. President Grover Cleveland's "shirt-sleeves" note to Downing street, bringing in the Monroe Doctrine, might easily have caused war had not Prime Minister Lord Salisbury and the cabinet acted with sensible forbearance. Nevertheless, in 1898, when the United States was badly in need of a friend, Britain came to her aid.

I happened to be living in Paris when news appeared that the American warship Maine had been sunk, apparently by the Spaniards, in the harbor of Havana, Cuba. Years later, like other tourists, I walked the rusty decks of that vessel after she had been resurrected from the muddy waters where sharks lurked and pelicans dove for fish. A few weeks after the sinking of the Maine, the United States declared war upon Spain, then the aggressive ruler of Cuba and the Philippines. France was sympathetic with Spain, and I well remember such headlines in the lesser Paris newspapers as "Latins Against Yankees," and "Our Brave Neighbors Across the Pyrenees." Britons Cheered Dewey

Despite the Venezuela incident, Queen Victoria, Lord Salisbury and the British people were as pro-American as possible in view of Britain's determination to stay neutral. It was Admiral Dewey's victory at Manila Bay on May 1, 1898, and events preceding and following it, that cemented an Anglo-British friendship which had lasted for forty-four years.

Oddly enough, it was Germany's behavior which brought about these cordial relations. When war was finally declared on April 24, 1898, Dewey's Asiatic Squadron was at Hong Kong, where the British took no pains to conceal their friendship for the United States. This was displayed when German naval officers whose ships were in the harbor became so courteous to the American admiral that he demanded and received an apology. Germany, with plans for expansion in the Far East, feared that defeat of Spain would give Americans the advantage out there and tried to bluff them out.

But Dewey, a sturdy man of sixty and a graduate of Annapolis who had served under Admiral David Farragut in the American Civil War, was not to be bluffed. With war declared Washington cabled him to "use utmost endeavor" in attacking the Spanish fleet at Manila. Aboard his flagship Olympia he left immediately for a pre-arranged base on the Chinese coast.

As he steamed out of Hong Kong thousands of British soldiers, sailors and civilians lined the waterfront shouting "Good luck to you."

London Lauded Victory
On May 1 the American fleet annihilated the Spanish warships, which were none of the best. Batteries on Manila Bay, including those of Cavite and Corregidor, were silenced. When the news reached London American flags fluttered everywhere and a huge pro-American demonstration was held. The London Times said editorially that "Admiral Dewey has shown himself worthy of the finest traditions of the United States Navy and of his kinship with the race that produced Nelson."

Still further evidence of British friendship was forthcoming at Manila Bay. While Dewey was blockading that port and awaiting the arrival of sufficient troops to capture the city, squadrons of British, French and German warships

SATAN TO RESIGN! I!

Hitler called the devil up on the telephone one day and the girl at the Central listened to all they had to say.

"Hello," she heard old Hitler say, "Is old man Satan home? Just tell him this is Adolf that wants him on the phone."

The devil said hello to "Hit" and "Hit" said, "How are you? I'm running a hell right here on earth, so tell me what to do."

"What can I do?" the devil said, "My dear old Adolf Hitler. If there's a thing that I can do to help you just name it."

Then Hitler said, "now listen and I will try to tell the way that I am running on earth a modern hell."

"I've planned for this for many years just like old Kaiser Bill and with the help of Benny we chased the Greeks over the hill."

"My army went thro' Europe, shooting women and children down. We tore up all the country and blew up all the towns."

"That's why I called you Satan, for I want advice from you. I know that you can tell me what more ought I to do?"

"My dear old Adolf Hitler. There's not much for me to tell, for the Yanks will make it hotter than I can for you in hell."

"I've been a mean old devil, but not as mean as you, and the minute that you get here I will give my job to you."

"I'll be ready for your coming and I'll keep the fires bright and I'll have your room all ready when the Yanks begin to fight."

"For the United States of America will get you, I have nothing more to tell. Hang up the phone and get your hat and meet me here in hell."

appeared on the scene as observers.

The British ships were under Captain Edward Chichester, a sea-dog of the finest type. The German squadron was commanded by Vice-Admiral Otto von Diederich, an arrogant, boorish junker. By international law a blockaded port is subject to control of the blockading force, and the commander of such a force is entitled to make and maintain regulations governing all vessels which may enter the waters commanded by his guns.

German Admiral Offensive
The British warships and even those of France, which was almost as pro-Spanish as Germany, observed Dewey's blockade regulations scrupulously, but the Germans did not. Von Diederich went out of his way to defy the rules in a most offensive manner. After protesting verbally to no effect, Dewey fired shots across the bows of the Hun ships, which was temporarily effective.

The furious von Diederich then asked Chichester to join him in a protest. "I don't see how I can do so," the Briton replied, according to Pack's "Twenty Years of the Republic." "I've been looking up all the authorities and I find that this American admiral is so deadly right in everything he does that if we protest we shall only show that we know nothing at all about international law."

Again von Diederich violated the regulations. Dewey told his flag lieutenant, "Say to Admiral von Diederich that if he wants a fight he can have it now."

Once more von Diederich consulted Captain Chichester. "Have you any instructions as to your action in case of hostilities between myself and the American squadron?" inquired the German. "Yes," replied Chichester, "I have."

Made Hun Back Down
"May I ask to be informed of the nature of these instructions?" asked the German admiral. "There are only two persons who know what my instructions are," replied the British commander. "One is myself and the other is Admiral Dewey."

Baffled, the German backed down, writes John E. Bierck, in the New York Herald-Tribune, recalling an historic occasion which present conditions bring to mind. Manila surrendered to American troops in August, 1898. But the Filipino insurrection that followed was not completely quelled until 1902.

Its leader was Emilio Aguinaldo, last heard of in 1942 as a would-be Quisling. One of his aides of forty years ago and later loyal to the United States, became first president of the Philippines, and as such is now in Australia. He is Manuel Quizon. The American officer to whom Quizon had surrendered early in the century was a Civil War veteran destined to become military governor of the islands. He was Lieutenant-General Arthur MacArthur, U.S.A., whose son Douglas of that same rank now commands the Allied forces in Australia.

Beaver dams are built with such strength and precision that horses can cross some of them without much damage.

MALTA—WHERE BOMBS GLINT
IN THE SUNSHINE

The strange life on raid-scarred Malta, where bombs can be seen glinting in the sunshine and diving Stukas scream out of blue skies, is described by a British naval officer's wife:

"Thousands of you who visited Malta in the far-off days of peace, who went away in the summer and returned in the autumn—moved with the fleet, in fact—would like to know what it feels like to be in the island which received more than 2,000 raids and alerts, half of which occurred after December," she writes in the London Daily Telegraph.

"It is a strange life. Nowhere is there escape from the scream of diving Stukas and the whine of falling bombs. Neither by day nor by night comes peace, not even in the most remote village. All are battle-scarred but cheerful. Up and down to the deep rock shelters—the salvation of the island—wreath like rabbits to their burrows when the bombers are overhead. At other times, we are brave and spellbound."

"After so many raids, one becomes an expert at observing where in the sky are the puffs of exploding shells and from the direction of the barrage one can determine where the main attack is coming off."

"If you decide to watch, it can be most exciting."

"You can see the Junker planes approaching—great black birds. The sight makes one's blood boil. They go through the barrage, release their bombs and rejoin the swarm of escorting Messerschmitts. They have been coming over in numbers, and it is most alarming to count them. The bombs can clearly be seen as they glint in the sunshine; then after a few seconds comes a deafening explosion. Doors rattle, latches come off, glass breaks, and the target area is covered with enormous columns of smoke and a thick fog of dust."

"After about half an hour of this, as they come in waves each time, there is a cessation of guns and bombs—except for the Messerschmitts which remain to observe the results."

"Then you carry on with breakfast or lunch and wonder who has got it this time. You go about your business, and the ARP, civil defense and the hospitals go about theirs."

"It is just an interlude. They will come again soon enough, make no mistake. They are running a shuttle service to and fro, and massed raids are interspersed with nuisance raids."

"It is odd to be writing a diary by the light of a hurricane lamp twenty feet underground. It is most difficult to write at all, not for lack of material, but because by bedtime one is mentally worn out."

"This morning I simply had to go in to Valletta, since there was a lot of shopping to be done. Living four miles out, it is too far to walk—a bicycle is the only solution."

"It was the loveliest morning, and the country was looking its best where it was not battle-marked. The red clover was blossoming, so were the orange blossoms. I was congratulating myself that I had chosen a moment of peace, when the siren went and people hurried to cover. I had reached a point for which I had never much cared—especially now—an open space. I turned around, bicycled back and took shelter in a friendly police station just in time, for we had a tremendous attack overhead with the usual whistling, banging and cracking noise. The blast coming down the passage to the shelter shook one."

"After the barrage died down, the policeman took me to the station roof to see if the enemy were still about. They were still in the distance, so I decided to chance it and went full-speed until someone shouted, 'Take cover!'"

"I hurried my bicycle to the ground and ran to a shelter as the bombs started whistling. For the third time I mounted my bicycle, feeling hot and dishevelled, and did the last lap through dust-fog, skirting shell holes and debris."

"The raiders passed; the signal went out, not feeling particularly like it, I started my shopping. I reached the library and got some books as the 'take cover' signal went again. There was a small margin of time, so I walked to the next shelter. When the bomb was over, I was feeling very tired because the rock shelter of Valletta had vibrated to the thud of falling bombs."

SOY BEANS

By J. C. Steckley, B.S.A.
Director Western Ontario Experimental Farm, Ridgetown

Soy beans have been grown in Ontario for the past forty of fifty years. They have been used mostly as a feed for livestock, as the price for soy beans for oil extraction was not sufficiently high to make it attractive to the farmers. Soy beans and Soy bean products have been brought to North America from the Orient. Since the present war has spread to Asia, these products are no longer available on this continent, consequently the price has risen so that soy beans have now become an attractive cash crop. Soy beans are needed at the present time to supply the necessary ingredients for the manufacture of munitions, as well as other necessary articles. They, therefore, become another product that the farmers of Ontario are asked to supply as a war necessity.

The soy bean is an annual, legume plant that grows erect. It varies in height from one to five feet, according to the variety, soil and climatic conditions. In Ontario the very early varieties are shorter than the later types. It has a tap root and the seed pods are borne along the stalk from the tip to the ground.

Soy beans grow and develop best in the grain corn growing areas of the province. They thrive on a wide range of soil, from the heavy clays to the sandy loams, and are more tolerant of acid conditions in the soil than most legumes. They respond fairly well to applications of mineral fertilizers, particularly following a crop where heavy applications of these fertilizers have been made the year previous. Soy beans are one of the crops that do well on the same soil year after year. This is probably due to the building up of the nitro fixing forms of bacteria. They also respond well to nitro-culture, particularly on soils where they have not been grown previously. Where nitro-culture is not used, the same effect can be obtained by spreading some soil from a field that has grown soy beans in previous years.

There are many varieties of soy beans; the three leading ones in the Province of Ontario are Mandarin, O.A.C. 211 and A.K. They are all adapted to Southwestern Ontario. There is very little difference in the yield of these three varieties but they vary somewhat as to maturity. The A.K. is the latest of the three and is well suited to Essex and part of Kent County. If sown outside of this district, they should be planted early in order to mature properly. The Mandarin is not so strong a grower but yields well. In the corn belt, if sown before the 10th of May, they will ripen early enough to follow with the fall wheat crop in the fall. The O.A.C. 211 is about a week later maturing than the Mandarin in Southwestern Ontario.

Soy beans are best planted in rows; by sowing them in every fourth spout of the grain drill, thus making the rows 28 inches apart, has proven a satisfactory method in most districts. 30 to 35 lbs. of Mandarin and A.K. varieties are sufficient to sow an acre while it requires about 45 lbs. of O.A.C. 211 as these beans are somewhat larger in size.

Soy beans are, by no means, a crop suitable for smothering weeds. They do best planted on a clean field. Harrowing, after the crop is up, is a good practice and will tend to keep a lot of the annual weeds in check and will save a good deal of labour later on in the season. After the beans are well up, they should be cultivated in about the same way as corn or the field bean crop.

As the Soy beans ripen, the leaves fall off but they do not have to be harvested at once and may be left for a few weeks, if other work is pressing at the time. In this way, they lend themselves to be harvested with a combine. There is some difficulty in saving the bottom pods with a combine, but this is a difficulty that is present in any method of harvesting. The binder, or combine, notwithstanding this difficulty, are more satisfactory methods of harvesting than any other at the present time. They save time and labour and get away from gathering up a lot of soil with the crop, if they are harvested with a bean puller.

Soy beans may be harvested with a bean mill. A regular grain thresher is apt to split a great many of the beans. If this machine is used, the cylinder speed should be reduced to about half of its regular rate. The other parts of the machine should operate at the normal speed. In addition, the teeth in the concave should be replaced to a single row or should be replaced altogether by wooden blanks.

If the weather is wet at harvest time, considerable care should be taken as the soy bean might contain too high a percentage of moisture to keep properly in storage. Soy beans that are harvested wet should always be tested for germination before planting, as their vitality may have been injured either by heavy frost or by heating in the bin.

"So you've just had a medical examination. What did the doctor say?"

"He said that I was in pretty good condition, but that I shouldn't start reading any continued stories."

PAIR SENTENCED TO ONE YEAR

"My sister and I had been to the dance in the hall and left alone about 9:30," testified a young girl from Newmarket. "Three boys were standing at the corner, and two of them started to follow us. We asked them to leave and the one did, but the other one kept following us. We went in to Alec's restaurant and there was no room, so we went over to Stanley's and he came after us. He stood and wanted to sit down, and we said 'No.' We ordered drinks and he did too. He took money out to pay for them, and we couldn't do anything about it. We thought if we let him sit down he would leave us. Then we went out of the restaurant and started home and he kept following us, although we kept asking him to leave. We turned at the corner of Park and he still kept coming. We went in the house and he stood at the side verandah. I asked him to leave and just then my father came out. We said we'd call the police, and he said to go ahead. I thought he had been drinking because he stumbled up the street."

"When the two girls came in I knew they were pretty badly scared," testified the father of the former witness. "I heard a fellow jump on the verandah and I went to the door and said, 'Listen friend, you're not welcome here.' He said, 'Just a minute. I'll go in a few minutes.' I went in to the telephone and called the police and went back out, and he wanted to fight and drew his fists. I said I wasn't a fighter and moved back behind the rose bush. He jumped off the verandah and started to chase me, and just then the police arrived."

"I had been drinking that night," admitted accused. "That's why I did it."

Percy Taylor of Toronto, charged with careless driving, was fined $5 and costs.

"On April 25 at 4 p.m. in the Township of East Gwillimbury I stopped this car," testified Constable Alex. Ferguson. "I was sitting in my car on the hill at Holland Landing. The accused turned out and passed a car going over a short, sharp curve. The highway is very narrow at this point, with a guard rail and quite a deep embankment to the right, and to the left a high embankment. There was no accident. The hill is sufficiently sharp and high that it is impossible to see a vehicle coming. He was over the white line when he passed this car."

"I wasn't near the top of the hill," testified accused. "This car was just moving along. I wouldn't be driving recklessly with the officer sitting on the side of the road in a white car. I've been driving for thirty-five years and have never been in an accident."

"Were you over the white line?" asked His Worship.

"Two of my wheels might have been," replied accused.

"Why do you think the Government bought paint and painted those lines?"

"If everyone drove as carefully as I do there would be no accidents," said accused.

Charged with speeding by Constable Mount, Helen Hantam of Bradford was fined $4.25 and costs; Paul Piddihny of Toronto, $4.25 and costs; Arthur M. Gee, Toronto, $8.25 and costs; Edwin R. Foster,

A thundering epic of heroic adventure, Columbia's "Texas" has been enthusiastically hailed by Hollywood preview audiences as "all the great action pictures you've ever dreamed of... rolled into one!" William Holden, Claire Trevor and Glenn Ford are starred in the suspense-cramped new film, said to be compounded of half-trigger gun fights, spectacular stampedes, frontier feuds, flaming passions and the many other vivid and colorful features of the great Southwest.

In the cast, supporting the star triumvirate, are George Bancroft, Edgar Buchanan, Don Beddoe and Willard Robertson.

"Texas" is the story of the early West, of Texas shortly after the Civil War, when the Kansas Pacific Railroad had been pushed through as far as Abilene, Kansas, and was intended to serve as the shipping point for range-bred cattle to feed the beef-hungry markets of the North and the East. But Indian raids and outlaw depredations combined to keep Texas longhorns out of Kansas.

On the same program the Strand presents the two kings of comedy, Laurel and Hardy, in "The Flying Deuces."

Bringing together the formidable starring combination of Bob Hope, Vera Zorina and Victor Moore, Paramount's Technicolor production of the Broadway smash comedy musical, "Louisiana Purchase," comes Monday to the screen of the Strand Theatre, with all the fanfare that rightfully accompanies a film of this importance.

As a long-run stage show, it dazzled audiences on Broadway and all over this country with its spectacle of beauty on parade, its music imbued with the genius of Irving Berlin and its hilarious story of political naughtiness in New Orleans. The incomparable Zorina, a dancer of breathtaking loveliness and an actress of equally agile accomplishment, and Victor Moore, who stirs audiences to howls of laughter when his timidity gives way to sudden lion-like courage, were in the original stage version, and occupy their same roles in the film version. Which is a good thing, for each is suited perfectly for the part portrayed.

As the guileless catspaw for a ring of tricky politicians, Bob Hope could hardly be seen to better advantage. The role is just up his alley, the kind of thing he does best, and with it his popularity ought to soar even higher than it is now.

Ronald Reagan, the young actor who made screen history as George Gyp in "Klute Rockne-Mil American," has the starring role in "International Squadron" and heading the large featuring supporting cast are Olympe Bradna, William

A Mother's Plea!

Oh, Time, stand still for me a little while.

And let to-morrow wait! So soon the year

Will take my boy away, and I must smile

To see him go—but I will smile through tears!

We are so happy now—oh, let us be!

Dear Time, stand still a little while for me!

Hailed by audiences who have previewed the film in Hollywood as the first great motion picture of the R.A.F.'s international squadron, the adventure film begins its local engagement on Friday.

Across every quarter of the globe make up the international squadron, most colorful fighting unit of the Royal Air Force. Fliers from France, Holland, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Norway and other conquered nations nightly risk their lives in the gallant fight that they hope will some day free their homelands. Their skill and daring have amazed the world, and now their heroic adventures in the sky have been immortalized in a screen story that literally provides its audiences with a thrill a minute.

For the first time in a feature length picture, the American public will see the bombing of London, life inside a bomb shelter, the operational control room which is the nerve centre of the Royal Air Force, and Spitfires in active combat with Messerschmitts.

PLEASANTVILLE

News and Views of People and Things by Isabel Inglis Colville

Things and places that have a history are always of interest, and one is sure that the thumb-nail sketches of places of interest by the members of the committee on historical research to be given at the Tuesday, May 19th meeting of the Women's Institute will not fall short of any of their kind. This meeting, the last of the institute year, will be held at the home of Mrs. Bert Dike.

Other features of interest will be a reading by Mrs. Wesley Williams, music by Mrs. G. Wood and the roll call, which asks you to name a former owner of your home.

Friday evening, May 8, the concert party, directed by Mrs. Belugin, will give as much of their performance as possible at Bogartown school house. Proceeds will be for the boxes set to our local boys, now serving king and country overseas. The boys write home about how much they appreciate their parcels and its up to us to see that the means to send them is forthcoming.

The film shown by the Toronto Evening Telegram was shown in Bogartown school house on Thursday evening last and brought home with great force the need for the B.W.V. fund and also showed the splendid way in which the fund is used for the alleviation of suffering in cases when people have lost their all.

Do You Think?

Voting always seems to me something strange as strange can be, for although a vote to show how the people wish to go, yet some people must and will always vote for party still, their's is not to reason why, their's is to say with just a sigh—this is how we've always voted, great grandfather was devoted to the Grit or Tory cause, so we stick to it, because its the family BLANK tradition, and we'd feel it was seilition to depart from where they led, though their causes are long dead. Can you think of any reason these good folk should deem it treason, to think things out as they are, nor let thoughts of grandpa bar them from taking their own stand, as their conscience shall demand? I have heard some people say, "I don't think I'll vote today—haven't had the time to spend reading just to know what end will be served by this election, so have made no real selection of the man I think the best. I'll just leave that to the rest. But if we could only feel that a vote is something real, something that was fought and won ore man's liberty begun; something Hitler's tried to kill, yet as long as men have will, they will never let it die—they'll regain it, by and by. And all thinking women fought for the right to voice their thought. Surely we must not be tardy using what they won so hardy. So let us begin today, thinking what our vote will say, when this war of liberty, brings, questions up, for you and me: when the war is won, at last and the tumult overpast, we will have a voice to say, in the new and better way that will make democracy, great and grand from sea to sea.

SHARK LIVERS SOURCE NEW VITAMIN SUPPLY

There will be plenty of vitamins for babies in Australia even if the reported mass drive to the altar by American soldiers and Aussie lasses causes a sharp uptrend in the continent's birth rate.

The Australian News and Information Bureau in New York reports that a new process discovered by an Australian firm will guarantee ample supplies of shark liver oil, rich in vitamins needed by infants.

Eighteen months ago, when vitamin oil imports from Newfoundland and Great Britain were plentiful, the shark livers were discarded, says Science Service. To-day they are the centre of a new industry promising to keep infants healthy and fishermen employed. Fish liver oils are rich in vitamins

A sailor wearing a Norwegian capband dropped into a Y.M.C.A. in England for a cup of tea. The Supervisor seeing the capband came up to him and said: "We've some Norwegian news papers in the reading room if you'd care to see them."

The sailor grinned. "Thanks," he said. "Afraid they wouldn't be much use to me though. This is a Norwegian capband all right, but I just borrowed the hat. I really belong to the Polish navy. And besides that I'm a born Yank from Brooklyn. Now if you've got a copy of the New York Times—"

The "Y" Supervisor staggered. But he did manage to produce a two week old copy of the paper asked for.

NEW SYRUP OF GERMS MAKES GRASS EDIBLE

A chocolate-flavored syrup of germs that, according to preliminary tests, enables human beings to eat grass, leaves and wood if other food supplies fail, was announced by Dr. Gustav J. Martin, of the Warner Institute for Therapeutic Research, New York City, at the meeting of the American Chemical Society, Science Service reports.

The germ syrup, which would accomplish the desired result for a lifetime at a cost of $2 per person, is considered particularly suitable for paratroops and other army units.

For civilians as well as soldiers, a germ syrup to supply vitamins for a lifetime, is also on its way. If Dr. Martin's experiments prove successful. Certain bacteria or germs of a type that do not cause disease, are known to manufacture various of the B vitamins. The cow does not have to eat B vitamins in food because her rumen contains the bacteria that manufactures them. Dr. Martin's experiments are designed to develop similar germ vitamin factories in man's intestines.

Dr. Martin's work on developing germ vitamin factories and the chocolate-flavored germ syrup for digesting grass, leaves and wood has been done on laboratory animals. Preliminary tests on humans have been started in New York hospitals. The idea of creating germ vita-

THE TEA MUG

To most people a tea mug is a very humble object—but Y.M.C.A. tea mugs are a class apart. Kings and corporals, princesses and privates, colonels and cooks have all welcomed the steaming hot tea which these mugs contain. Wherever the Y.M.C.A. is at work—in Britain, in Libya, in the Far East, in Iceland—the humble tea mug plays its indispensable part.

Some idea of the general demand for tea can be gauged from the fact that, since the beginning of the war, the Y.M.C.A. in Britain alone has had to order more than 750,000 new mugs from manufacturers, quite apart from the large number in stock at the outbreak of hostilities.

The manufacture of these new mugs alone costs the Y.M.C.A. nearly $50,000 a year—and that is only one minor item in the vast expenditure needed to maintain all the varied facilities which the Y.M.C.A. provides for men of the Services.

The mugs are made from Cornish clay and go through an intricate process of manufacture. Starting as a rough hollow of clay they pass through many expert hands which shape them, bake them for 70 hours in a temperature of 1100 degrees Fahrenheit, give them the final gleaming polish in a bath of liquid glass, and send them out in hundreds of thousands, ready for a welcome anywhere.

That, in brief, is the saga of the Y.M.C.A. tea mug, that humble instrument which binds together all from kings down to drummer boy.

At one time 60 million buffalo grazed on an area of more than one million square miles in the United States and Canada.

BRAIN WAVES CONTINUE MINUTE AFTER DEATH

Brain waves go on after death. A four-man team of research scientists announced this discovery at the Boston meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. The scientists do not think this is a sign that activity of conscious, thinking variety continues after death. Science Service reports. But the experiments may lead to a greater knowledge of how nervous tissue like the brain functions.

The experiments were reported by Dr. Morton A. Rubin, Dr. Heibel E. Hoff, Dr. Alexander W. Winkler and Dr. Paul K. Smith of the Worcester, Mass., State Hospital and Yale University School of Medicine.

Brain waves are the records of electric currents discharged during brain activity, which scientists have been using in the study of such disorders as epilepsy. They were hailed, when first discovered, as being likely to throw as much light on brain functioning as the more familiar electrocardiograms shed on heart function.

The discovery that these brain waves, and therefore the brain activity responsible for them, continue after death may make it necessary to revise some of the ideas of what the brain waves mean, as well as to reopen the question of what constitutes death.

In cats, the scientists reported,
